

Thomas Reagan
Dean of Arts and Sciences
Great Basin College
Elko, Nevada

Thomas Reagan is the Dean of Arts and Sciences at Great Basin College. He supervises baccalaureate programs in Teacher Education, Biology, English, Natural Resources and Social Science for the community college that serves an 86,000 square mile swath of rural Nevada.

Reagan previously spent nine years as Program Supervisor and Professor of Teacher Education focusing on assessment, math education, and foundations of education. Prior to coming to Great Basin College, Reagan taught math and psychology for 12 years in rural Nevada high schools.

Reagan received a BS in Secondary Ed/Math and Psychology from Idaho State University, a MS in Natural Science from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and has completed doctoral work in Ed Leadership at UNLV. He resides in Spring Creek, Nevada with his wife, Amy, a middle school teacher, and their two children.